Optical fiber distribution system for customer premises

Summary
Regarding the optical wiring system for using the FTTH service in a detached house or a single apartment house, laying of optical cables using quartz optical fiber, connection thereof, installation, maintenance / management, testing and performance of those constituent articles standards and indicators are described.
In this paper, the terms and examples changed after the issuing of the first edition are revised.